ready made so much headway before
it had been noticed, that all efforts
and attempts to save the building had to be abandoned and every effort made to save the contents. Nearly all the contents of both stores were saved
just before the building collapsed. As a very strong wind was blowing from
the burning building towards the Lutheran Church and parsonage just across the street and burning pieces
of wood, paper and other cinders were continually blowing at and over them,
great anxiety was felt for a while that it would be impossible to save them if spark of fire once became lodged anywhere and part of the contents of the parsonage had already been removed,
when a slight but most welcome
shower of rain came to the assistance
of the hard working crowd and moistened the roofs and walls of the nearest buildings sufficiently to lessen the danger and relieve all anxiety and fear that the calamity might spread to other parts of the village. A defective chimney is supposed to be the cause of the loss.

MAKES OLD PEOPLE STRONG AND WELL.

We want to get the news to all old
people about Rexall Olive Emulsion,
a remarkable new food-medicine which
we firmly believe is the best remedy
ever made to overcome the weakening
debilitating effects of increasing old age. It helps to rebuild wasted tissues strengthens the nerves, and give new energy and a lively feeling to the body. It contains no alcohol or dangerous drug. It may not make you feel better for a few days, but if you do not feel much better and stronger before you have taken a quarter as much as you have of other medicines that have not helped you,
we will gladly give back your money.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion contains pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites which, though they have long been endorsed by successful physicians, are here for the first time combined. The result is a real body, nerve and blood-building food-medicine that we believe is superior to anything else in overcoming debility, weakness and liability
to disease, and to tone and strengthen the nerves and enrich the blood. You who are weak and run-down—you
who are often troubled by various cold
weather ailments, use Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion to get and keep well and strong. It is a sensible, pleasant-tasting aid, to renewed strength, bette-spirits, glowing health. If it doesn't help you, come and tell us and we will give back your money without a word.
That is how much faith we have in it.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT MAY APPEAL TO COUNTRY

London, March 24.—There is a strong feeling throughout the country to-day, that the British government will, in view of recent events, pass the home rule bill and other important measures on hand and immediately appeal to the country.

This rumor was given more credence this afternoon, when it was known that Premier Asquith had had a hasty conference with King George at Buckingham Palace. It was stated that the conference was in regard to the dissolution of parliament, but no admission to that effect could be obtained in authoritative government circles.

NEW FINANCIAL DAILY.

Hon. Mr. Fielding to be Head of New Daily Journal of Commerce.

Just as soon as the necessary machinery can be installed, the present weekly "Journal of Commerce" will be turned into a daily financial and commercial newspaper. A strong company has been formed with the Honorable W. S. Fielding, ex-Finance Minister, at its head to take over the present weekly "Journal of Commerce." Mr. Fielding and those associated with him, believe that the time is ripe for the publication in Canada of a daily paper devoted exclusively to financial and commercial matters. The publication in question will cover commerce and finance in the widest possible way, including among other things, banking, stocks and bonds, municipal debentures, insurance, transportation, manufacturing, wholesale markets, company reports and other matters pertaining to commerce in the broadest aspect. The combination of an ex-Finance Minister as head of the first commercial and financial daily in the country, is a somewhat unusual alliance, and should make for a large measure of success. Mr. Fielding will be president of the company and Editor-in-Chief of the paper, with Mr. J. C. Ross, the present Editor of the weekly "Journal of Commerce," as Managing Editor. In addition, a staff of trained men is being secured to take charge of the various departments to be covered by the new daily. It will make its appearance in the course of the next few weeks, or just as soon as the necessary machinery can be installed. The new publication will not be in any sense a political or party paper, but will be an independent financial and commercial daily.

FIRE IN WINNIPEG.

Damage Amounting to Over $115,000 Is Done In Blaze.

WINNIPEG, March 24.—Fire broke out at 4.15 yesterday afternoon in the Scott block, Main street, valued at $115,000, carrying insurance of $55,000. The whole interior of the building, which is a six-storey brick structure, divided into office suites, was destroyed, bringing the total estimated loss up to $250,000. Among the tenants were: Canadian Northern Railway special agents; the C. N. R. general claims department; Rembrant Co., photographers; F. W. Scott; C. & J. Jones; Western Investment Co.; Western Woodenware Co.; Thomas Boyle, Irish railways and general contractors agency; L. P. Beaubien, barrister; J. N. Carter, contractor; Geo. H. Hess, Son & Co.; Winnipeg Scenic Co.; Sanitary Supply Co.; Benj. J. Curry, dentist; J. B. Duncan, contractor; C. N. R. telegraphers; Mackenzie & Mann Telegraph Construction Co.; Harvey Bros., manufacturers; C. H. Kenney & Co.; Gate City Brick Works; Manitoba Sunday School Association; Western Teachers' Bureau; North Empire Fire Insurance Co., and the J. D. Clark Co.

There were several narrow escapes owing to the fact that the elevator in the building collapsed at the first descent loaded with passengers, no one being injured in the collapse. Dr. Moffat, dentist, in the office of Dr. Curr, was badly injured in the back as the result of the strain caused by jumping 45 feet from the fourth storey into a life net. At midnight the fire was practically under control, and no casualties could be proven, although one or two had been reported missing. It was believed, in view of the fact that the firemen had not seen any bodies, that these persons may have remained in the crowd of spectators.

He denied a charge made on the floor of the Senate that he had attempted to limit the tolls debate in the House. He said that while he had no part in suggesting a rule to limit debate, and he hoped there would be none.

In reply to questions as to whether he thought any improper influences were being brought bear against the repeal, the President declared that he had not sought to find any and did not suspect them.

Unionists in Britain Believe That the Ministry Has Tried to Scare Covenanters and Has Been Thwarted By the Officers of the Army—Liberal and Labor Press Bitter Over Action of Soldiers.

LONDON, March 24. — The defection of the army officers who refused to serve in Ulster is now a closed incident, but its consequences are likely to prove far-reaching. Premier Asquith and Col. Seely, Secretary of State for War, made explanations before an excited and turbulent House yesterday that the whole affair was the result of a misunderstanding.

This misunderstanding, it was inferred, although they did not directly say so, was due to misconstruction of the Government's plans by the commanding general, Sir Arthur Paget, whereby he informed the officers in Ireland that they were to move on Ulster for a repressive campaign.

Gen. Paget and three senior officers from the Curragh camp — Gen. Gough, Col. McEwen and Col. Parker — were summoned to London for a conference. According to official statements the misunderstanding has been cleared away, and those officers returned to Ireland last night. Prior to their departure they said they were entirely satisfied with the results of their visit. The terms on Modern Bluebeard Executed.

FRANKFORT - ON - THE - MAIN, Germany, March 24.—Carl Hober, the druggist, of this city, who has been named the "Bluebeard of Ger- many," was beheaded yesterday for murdering his father, his first wife and his two children. The accused man was also found guilty of at- tempting to murder his second and third wives and several other per- sons.

FEUD IS ALLEGED.

Was Woodbine Hotel Tragedy Caused by Men's Quarrel.

TORONTO, March 24.—Although the origin of the Woodbine Hotel fire is still a profound mystery to the Toronto authorities, a story is cir- culating in several towns in eastern Ontario which may throw some light on the problem if thoroughly investi- gated by the police.

According to this story there were present in the hotel at the time of the fire two men who were deadly ene- mies. An encounter some months ago was the basis of this feud, the result of which was that one of them is said to have declared he would "get" the other.

When the two met under the same roof in the Woodbine Hotel it is said that the day of revenge was taken by the one to be at hand. At any rate, there was a fire, and there are five dead, the name of one of whom is connected with the feud and its threatened sequel.

Gough, Col. McEwen and Col. Parker —were summoned to Lohdon for a conference. According to official statements the misunderstanding has been cleared away, and those officers returned to Ireland last night. Prior to their departure they said they were entirely satisfied with the re- sults of their visit. The terms on which the officers remain at their posts were not disclosed, but the ge- neral belief is that they were assured that they would not be compelled to fight against the Ulstermen. This is considered a distinct surrender by the Government.

The Unionists firmly believe that the Government has participated in a fiasco. They think that the two most enterprising spirits of the Cab- inet, David Lloyd George and Win- ston Spencer Churchill, were the chief movers in the plan and that the Government proposed a wholesale movement of troops in Ulster to over- awe the covenanters by the display of superior force and the arrest of their leaders and that the plan was frustrated only by the opposition of the officers.

Liberal newspapers of high stand- ing and influence, like The Daily Chronicle and The Daily News, print bitter denunciations of the officers as part of the Tory aristocracy which insists upon the prerogative of ruling the country against the will of the people and demand the democratiza- tion of the army and that the system of officering it from the sons of the rich be superseded by a system whereby officers may be promoted from the ranks.

The labor papers are equally bit- ter and demand to know why privates should not have the same privilege of refusing to fire upon working- men when called upon to suppress strike riot.

Carson Is Impressed.

BELFAST, March 24.—Sir Edward Carson, commenting on the Parlia- mentary debate, said last night:

"Hour by hour I am becoming more impressed with the Govern- ment's message of peace to Ulster."

Sir Edward Carson is still at Craig- avon, which is surrounded by sen- tries. He received yesterday a num- ber of battalion commanders of his army and sent long despatches to his Lieutenants in London. He says he will not leave Belfast until the crisis is over.

Volunteers patrolled the street yes- terday, having first received explicit instructions from their commander to deal promptly with any of their own men acting in a disorderly man- ner, and to give the police immediate assistance in any such case. The city is absolutely quiet, but great in- terest was displayed in the Parlia- mentary statements by the crowds which remained around the bulletin boards of the newspapers most of the night.

An Exalted Position.

"He used to be at the top of his profession, but one day he fell, and he will never again occupy his former exalted position."

"You surprise me. What was his position?"

"He was the apex of a 'human pyramid' with a team of acrobats."

Easily Explained.

"I wonder what is the matter with me?" he said. "I have a feeling of depression and I can't throw it off, no matter how I try."

"I know what is the matter," his wife replied. "You have an engage- ment with the dentist at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, you know."

MAY HOLD CONFERENCE.

Imperial Naval Gathering Is Now a Possibility.

LONDON, March 24.—(C.A.P. Ca- ble.)—A colonial conference of the Home Government and of those of the Dominions over seas on the ques- tion of naval defence of the Pacific, is now within the realm of possibi- lity. This was made clear by Premier Asquith yesterday when in reply to Capt. Faber, he admitted that the Colonial Office had opened negotia- tions with the Governments of Australia and New Zealand regarding the holding of such a conference at an early date.

In view of the fact that Govern- ment refused quite recently to hold a conference which was to include Canadian participation, it is infer- red the new turn of events are en- tirely due to pressure from the Anti- popean Governments.

WHITEWASHING THE MUD-THROWERS

ONTARIO M.P.P. WHO INVESTIGATED TRENT CANAL IRRIGATIONS, HAS TO BE EXTRICATED FROM HIS OWN LAW-BREAKING.

Attempts on the part of the Conservative politicians to "throw mud" at the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier have invariably resulted in the necessity of taking strenuous steps to apply the "whitewash" to themselves. There has been an ugly boom-erang attached to every effort to make political capital along this line, from the initial revelations concerning Mr. A. B. Morine, who received the first Borden appointment at the head of the Hunt-for-Scandal Commission, which resulted in the Commissioner leaving Canada for good, down to the scandalous scenes of the past week in the Ontario Legislature when in defiance of the rules the Conservative majority spent all night in steam-rolling through a measure to protect Mr. C. Howard Ferguson from the statutory consequences of his conduct.

Mr. Ferguson's case was especially significant one. Here was a lawyer-politician who set about to hunt for law-breakers while he was breaking the law himself. He was more concerned with the discovery of irregularities in the conduct of officials on the Trent Canal during the regime of the Liberal administration, than he was over the similar and more serious irregularities which have been carried on since the advent of the Borden administration. The evidence taken by Mr. Ferguson, as presented in his official report to the Government, shows that for the most part he was very careful to confine his questions to witnesses to what happened prior to September 21st, 1911. He combined the qualities of partisan-investigator in that order of precedence.

That the investigation should have been held is evident from the irregu-

STAGING THE C. N. R. COUP. GOVERNMENT IS MAKING GALLERY PLAY TO PUBLIC WHILE DRIVING ITS BARGAIN WITH THE RAILWAY KNIGHTS.

Before the Government publicity surrenders again to Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann and allows them to shake the plum tree for another forty or fifty millions, political exigencies require considerable stage-play for the benefit of the people of Canada who provide the money. For the past fortnight or so there has been a lot of this stage-play on Parliament Hill. The Conservative caucus held on Wednesday last, ostensibly to enable the Government to consult its followers and ask their advice as to whether the proposed aid should be given to the Canadian Northern or not, was merely "playing the gallery." As a matter of fact, Hon. Robert Rogers, Hon. W. T. White and Premier Borden knew last session when the fifteen million dollars gift was made to Mackenzie and Mann, that they would be back again this session for considerably more and that they would have to be accommodated.

Public sentiment however, has to be consulted even by a Conservative Government. The renewal of the application on a larger scale this year with the consequent arousing of public suspicion and resentment has convinced the Government that there must be at least a show of driving a hard bargain with the Railway Knights. Moreover, apparent reluctance to meet their wishes would of course help the driving of the bargain.

What is wanted by the Government and its followers is a quid pro quo. A campaign contribution of at least $750,000 is whispered in the lobbies as being one of the "considerations." To placate public opinion there must also be some show of a complete accounting by Mackenzie and Mann of what has been done with the public assistance already granted towards financing the C. N. R. system. This aid, including cash and land subsidies and bond guarantees, both provincial and federal, now amounts to over $200,000,000. And as yet there has never been any real or complete statement made to Parliament or to the public as to how the funds thus raised have been expended.

The Government realizes that in granting further assistance to Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann it is apt to bump up against a very strong and impatient public whose long suffering has already been strained nearly to the breaking-point. But at the same time the Government realizes that its political exigencies, and the needs of its financial allies demand that the bond guarantee be given. That is now well understood between the two contract-

his successor at the head of the Government? Would Mr. Rogers step into the shoes and become in name, as he is now in actuality, the master of the administration? What would the country think of Robert Rogers, the "hero" of scores of Manitoba political deals and of countless election scandals as official leader of the Conservative party? Or, if Mr. Rogers forces the Government's hand and compels his appointment as successor of Strathcona, what would be thought of such a man standing as representative of Canada at the heart of the Empire?

If, in compromise, one of the other aspirants is named what of the disappointed ambitions of their competitors and the complications they must bring? What of the determination of the "Manitoba wonder" to be High Commissioner himself or to oust Borden out of the Premiership?

So, because of party difficulties involved in the selection, the Government leaves Canada unrepresented at London, sacrifices the interests of the Dominion to petty party ends. How far the country suffers no one can say with definiteness; but, surely, if Canada has ever been in need of the services of an able and honest man at London that time is now when conditions of financial depression and stringency are affecting Canadian projects at the money market of the Empire.

The situation brought some good natured railery from Hon. Mr. Graham in the Commons a few days ago, good natured, but none the less pointed because of its good nature. It left the Government embarrassed because Mr. Graham put his finger on some of the reasons for the Ministry's inaction.

"Why should Parliament be asked to vote supplies to someone who does not exist?" he asked. "Why grant money to someone who isn't on the job?"

But the Government did not respond. The squabble over the High Commissionership goes merrily on. Mr. Rogers continues to scheme, and others continue to outwit him or to advance their own selfish ends if his scheming wins him the High Commissionership or brings the ousting of the Prime Minister. Meanwhile Canadian money is spent for an office which is without a head and Canadian interests go unrepresented at London at a critical time in Canadian affairs.

AMAZONS OF THE ALPS.

Big and Brawny, They Do the roughest Kind of Heavy Work.

On the mountainous slopes of the Bardonecchia district of the Alps there is a curious race of powerfully built people. For some reason best known to themselves they build their dwellings in spots inaccessible to ordinary mortals. The people of the neighboring valleys are quite a different class of beings and are looked upon as weaklings, which they certainly are compared with the sturdy men and women who ascend the steep and rugged roads leading to primitive cottages. The men are rough of mien and boast a physique that is extraordinary, but they are not so remarkable as the women, who may be described as peaceful Amazons.

Most marked is the difference between the women who live in this portion of Italy and the French ones whose home is but a few miles away in the valley of the Isere, between Chambéry and Modane. The latter are ordinary peasantry, but the former attract the attention of the visitor immediately by reason of their size, strength and powers of endurance.

on since the advent of the Borden administration. The evidence taken by Mr. Ferguson, as presented in his official report to the Government, shows that for the most part he was very careful to confine his questions to witnesses to what happened prior to September 21st, 1911. He combined the qualities of partisan investigator in that order of precedence.

That the investigation should have been held is evident from the irregularities disclosed. That Mr. Ferguson should have been chosen as the investigator destroyed its real purpose. It became not an investigation of wrongdoing on the part of public servants, but a still hunt for political capital.

Mr. Ferguson, it will be remembered, is the politician who came so zealously to the defence of Hon. W. J. Hanna, in the Legislature, when the Provincial Secretary became involved in the yet-to-be-explained negotiations with Contractor Taylor who furnished Mr. Hanna with a campaign contribution of $500. Mr. Ferguson's zeal for full publicity of facts and for the public welfare was not made apparent at that time.

Mr. Ferguson violated the law of his own Government in his eagerness to avail himself of the emoluments and opportunities which the commission of the Borden Government offered him. He disqualified himself under the Revised Statutes of Ontario from further holding his seat in the Legislature. He became liable to a penalty of $2,000 per day for every day on which he has occupied his seat in the Legislature since his acceptance of the commission in 1912. When confronted with the seriousness of his action, the Ontario Government, the members of which he had so vigorously aided in their hour of need, rushed in panic to his rescue and sought to legislate against its own enactments with a view to "saving" the politician-investigator. In defiance of the rules of the Legislature, against the protests of Liberalism, the gag and the steamroller were ruthlessly applied to save this politician from the inevitable results of his own acts.

The whole spectacle has a very unpleasant savor. It illustrates the reckless disregard of British ideals of fair play and decency which have obtained in Canada under the party-first regime of the Borden administration. It will, however, do much to arouse public sentiment to the necessity for stern and drastic reform, if Canada is to have her good name protected and a high standard of morality in public life preserved.

TRUCK AND TRADE WITH THE YANKEES

MR. GUTELIUS DISCRIMINATES AGAINST NOVA SCOTIA COAL IN FAVOR OF DEARER AND POORER AMERICAN COAL.

For a Government which came into power on the plea of developing home industries and of having "no truck or trade with the Yankees" the recent action of the Government in allowing Mr. F. P. Gutelius the ex-C.P.R. man and ex-American citizen, to buy supplies of coal for the Intercolonial from the United States at a higher price than it could be obtained in Canada, is amazing.

The facts of the case have been brought out by official correspondence tabled in the Commons on motion of Mr. E. M. Macdonald. Last autumn Mr. Gutelius entered into a contract with an Ogdensburg firm for 15,000 tons of "run of mine" coal costing at Massena Springs, N. Y., $3.89 per ton. This coal was for the use of the Intercolonial at Levis. Delivered there its gross cost to the Government, including transportation charges, was approximately $4.92 per ton.

Last year coal said to be of a considerably higher standard, for use at Levis was obtained by the Intercolonial management from the Nova Scotia companies at a cost of $3.70 per ton. This year it is understood these companies were willing to furnish the I. C. R. coal supplies at the same figure. Apparently Mr. Gutelius prefers to trade with his own countrymen, even if it costs the Canadian public much more to do it.

It may be further noted that this contract was entered into at the very time Mr. Gutelius was completing his report on the alleged "waste in connection with the construction of the National Transcontinental. Comment is unnecessary.

RIVAL AMBITIONS.

HUMORS OF MINISTERIAL ASPIRATIONS FOR HIGH COMMISSIONERSHIP.

There is only one thing lacking in connection with the office of Canadian High Commissioner. There is no trouble about supplies for the Government has provided them with a generous hand. There is no difficulty about the question of salary, for the Government has made preparation for a greatly increased amount. There is only one detail lacking attention—the appointment of the High Commissioner himself.

Weeks have passed since Lord Strathcona died. His successor remains unappointed. The Government does nothing. To quote the words of Hon. Geo. F. Graham it "shivers on the brink" of making an appointment—"shivers on the brink" because the Ministers are unable to decide among Premier Borden, Hon. Robert Rogers and the half dozen or so of other aspirants for the position. It "shivers on the brink" because of the complications which loom up if any one of the aspirants is named.

Most marked is the difference between the women who live in this portion of Italy and the French ones whose home is but a few miles away in the valley of the Isere, between Chambéry and Modane. The latter are ordinary peasantry, but the former attract the attention of the visitor immediately by reason of their size, strength and powers of endurance.

There are several types of women in this district of the unfrequented Alps. Dark complexions suggestive of southern Italy, brunettes and blonds may be seen working side by side. All, however, are tall, well built and muscular. The work these women are capable of and which they do cheerfully is enough to terrify any average laborer in the British isles. It is not a little gentle farming or milking or anything that can be done with comparative ease, but hard, laborious work of all kinds, requiring much physical strength and sustained effort.

To see women carrying loads of a hundredweight and more for miles along rough roads and up steep inclines is quite common, and that a stranger should comment upon the feat is to them incomprehensible. They have been accustomed to work since the days of their girlhood and cannot imagine the delicate ladies of the big towns.—London Standard.

SKOBELEV, THE MADCAP.

Millet Thought Him Almost a Reincarnation of Napoleon.

A few days before he sailed for Europe on the trip which ended with his death on the Titanic, Frank D. Millet said to a friend in his studio:

"Skobelev! How well I remember him! We used to call him the Madcap. That was when he swam the Danube against orders, dashed into Plevna without re-enforcements and committed other little indiscretions of that sort which only a madman or a genius would attempt.

"Later I came to recognize him as almost a reincarnation of Napoleon. His ambition was literally about the same as Napoleon's. He wanted Russia to conquer the world. I stood with him once on the heights above Constantinople—it was in March, 1878, just before the treaty of San Stefano—when he outlined to me his schemes, which began with the absorption of the Ottoman empire, then extended to a conquest of India and concluded with piratical designs on England in Europe.

"It was unbelievably naive, and I should have dismissed the talk as the veriest moonshine had I not been a witness during the preceding months to the man's rise from an inferior position, where he was under a cloud, to a lieutenant generalship, with which he had become the hero of the war. He was then the practical hand which Russia held on Turkey's throat. He died only a few years later, miserable, wasted, futile. A strange man, a great man; I think the most remarkable man I have ever known."—Richard Barry in Century.

office as hangman because the execution by him of two innocent persons
got on his nerves.

The first case was that of a farm lad,
aged about eighteen, accused of shooting a policeman. The boy protested his innocence to Berry up to the last moment, but was duly executed. Some time after this Berry hanged the Nether-by hall murderers, one of whom just before he died told Berry that it was he who had shot the policeman for which crime the boy had been executed.

The second case was that of Mary Lefley of Lincolnshire, who was accused of poisoning her husband with arsenic. She, too, protested her innocence, but was hanged. Some years later a farmer dying of cancer confessed the crime. He said he had had a quarrel with John Lefley, and when both John and Mary were out he had entered their cottage and put arsenic
in a milk pudding which had been pre-

GEMS IN A VACUUM.

They Take on an Added Brilliance and Fairly Glow.

The jewelers of ancient Egypt knew more than modern craftsmen about treating gems so that they would shine and sparkle. Such gems as the emerald, garnet and jacinth were livelier and more luminous in the days of the Ptolemies than they can be made today. It is known that the diamond, ruby, emerald and kunzite become more phosphorescent or fluorescent under certain circumstances.

Gems exhibit the liveliest phosphor-escence in vacuum tubes. Even in rarefied air some diamonds give out a blue light, which is not present in a denser atmosphere. In a vacuum a diamond of four or five karats gives
as much light as a candle. The color of the light differs not only with the origin of the diamond, but with the facets of the same diamond. Maskelyne made a collection of diamonds
which glowed in a vacuum with nearly all the colors of the spectrum. An un-
cut stone which was roughly cube shape, with truncated corners and edges, emitted orange yellow light
from the faces of the cube, pale yellow
from the corners, and lemon yellow
from the flat edges.

Next to the diamond stands the ruby
as highly phosphorescent in a vacuum.
The ruby emits a beautiful red light,
as though it were incandescent. Kunzite shines with a golden yellow or yellow tinged with rose. The emerald shines with a crimson light. The same gems become phosphorescent under the influence of radium. The ultraviolet rays also produce luminosity in gems.

It is well known that rubies from the mines of Burma are more valuable than those from neighboring Siam. Externally they look much alike, but under the ultraviolet rays the Burmese
stones which are called oriental rubies
glow like red embers, while the Siamese
rubies look almost black.—Independent.

there are some very curious literary parallels. The Crimean War was foretold 400 years before that event,
the prophecy in verse being embodied in a little book published in 1453. It began:—

In twice two hundred years the Bear
The Crescent will assail,
But if the Cock and Bull unite
The Bear will not prevail.

When Guy de Maupassant, in one of his stories, described how an Englishman with three daughters, stood on the deck of a sinking vessel with a Frenchman, and all met their fate
singing "God Save the Queen," not a few of the French critics pronounced the whole incident to be absolutely implausible. Nevertheless, many years later, in 1897, a similar patriotic scene was enacted on the deck of the doomed Aden.

Perhaps one of the most interesting of literary coincidences is that concerning Mrs. Humphry Ward and Mr. Israel Zangwill. Stories from the pens of these two novelists were simultaneously appearing in Harper's Magazine, and in the same issue both
writers described a scene at Orvieto,
the actions of which were also peculiarly similar. Yet Mr. Zangwill subsequently confessed that he had chosen Orvieto because he thought the place comparatively neglected by writers.

The story of an extraordinary coincidence is related by Sir W. Robertson Nicoll in "A Bookman's Letters." A lady sent her servant, a young man of about twenty, to a neighboring town with a valuable
ring which required some alteration.
On the way he unfortunately dropped the ring while looking at it. He thought it fell into the hollow stump
of a tree under the water of a stream,
but failed to find it. Afraid to return to tell the story of his loss, he ran away, went to the West Indies,
and there accumulated a very fair
fortune. Then he resolved to come home and clear himself with his mistress.

Arriving in London he ascertained
that she was still alive, and purchased a diamond ring of considerable value, which he determined to present in person. Arriving in the neighborhood he met a former servant, to whom he unfolded the story of why
he had left the country abruptly years before. As he was telling the story they came to the spot where he had dropped the ring. "There,"
said he, "it was just here that I dropped the ring, and there is the very bit of old tree into a hole of which it fell—just there." At the same time he put down the point of
his umbrella into a hole in the tree,
and, drawing it out, there appeared,
to the astonishment of both, the very
ring on the ferrule of the umbrella.

Among scientific coincidences there is nothing so remarkable as that concerning Darwin and Alfred Russel Wallace, who died recently. Both scientists, unknown to each other, evolu-
ed the theory which is now termed Darwinism.

FORESTRY FACTS.

The production of Douglas Fir lumber has increased thirty-eight per cent in the last two years, according to a recent publication of the Dominion Forestry Branch on the forest products of Canada. This percentage is double that of any other leading Canadian wood for the same period. This tree made up 67.7% of the total lumber production of British Columbia, which province is estimated to contain as much timber as all the rest of Canada. The importance of the Douglas fir is exemplified by a statement made by Dr. C. S. Sargent, the leading authority on American trees, who says: "No other American tree of the first magnitude is so widely distributed, or can afford so much timber, and the rapidity of its growth and its power of reproduction under favorable conditions make it the most valuable inhabitant of the great coniferous forest of the northwest."

Hickory is the strongest Canadian wood. When properly seasoned a hickory column will support a weight of twelve tons per square inch cross-section, which is considerably more than what could be borne by a pillar of cast iron or steel of the same length and weight.

The natives of Ceylon eat one and a half million coconuts a day. There are sixty million coconut trees on this island, and the surplus production of nuts is chiefly used to make copra, the dried 'meat' of the nut, which is a valuable source of vegetable oils. It is estimated that there are produced yearly 600,000 to 700,000 tons of copra valued at sixty-five million dollars. One quarter of the world's production comes from the Philippine Islands.

Canada has trebled its production of paper in the last three years.

In the 157,400 square miles recently added to northern Ontario there is very little timber of any present value. Mr. J. B. Tyrrell, reporting on his trip through this new district of Patricia, says: 'Most of the timber small and much of it has been burned.

.....Larch or 'tamarack' is associated white and black spruce to the northern limit of the district, but unfortunately most of the trees are dead.

Weather forecasts were used last summer by the Dominion Forestry Branch in regulating the fire-protective patrol in the Railway Belt, British Columbia. As the prevailing winds were westerly the weather to be expected in the interior of the province could be foretold by telegraph many hours in advance, and if there was little danger to be expected, the District Fire Inspector would permit a temporary decrease in the railway patrol.

In British India the Forest Service derives an annual revenue of over one and a quarter million dollars from the rental of grazing privileges on forest areas under Government administration. The United States Forest Service last year secured a revenue of over one million dollars by the same method. But in Canada, during the last fiscal year, the issuance of grazing permits on Dominion Forest Reserves netted the Forestry Branch less than $100. The Dominion Government, however, recently passed new grazing regulations which will not only permit the full utilization of the grass-lands on the reserves, but will at the same time substantially increase the future revenues of the Dominion Forestry Branch.

ARTIFICIAL DAYLIGHT.

New Process Revolutionizes Many Trades by Permitting Night Work.

The new process of making artificial daylight at night is quite simple, according to Arthur St. George Joyce, who writes on this subject in The Technical World Magazine. All that is needed, he explains, are two color screens and a strong incandescent light. Then the artificial light rays are passed through the screens,
which draw out the excess of colorings that are foreign to daylight, and there remains true, pure and unvarying daylight.

Various cabinets, lamps and lights
to produce daylight have been manufactured, but none has stood the test, continues the writer. In this latest invention a cabinet is employed. The cabinet is constructed in various sizes, but the one which is most convenient is 18 inches deep, 30 inches wide, and 28 inches high.

An incandescent gas light is placed at the top of the cabinet. There is a metal reflector to throw the light
downward through the delicate screens which filter out the rays of red, orange and yellow, which are foreign to daylight except in a small way. In other words, the screens extract from the light excesses of these colors.

The invention has a great field of usefulness in surgery and certain industries. Surgeons depend upon the color of the tissues to tell whether they are diseased or not. A great deal of surgery is done at night. In artificial light the tissues have not their true color. The invention will remedy that, in that operations may be performed by aid of daylight at any hour
of the night.

In textile manufacturing, dying
and color printing daylight at night
will have many uses. In color printing, for instance, the presses can be run only so long as the ink put in by daylight lasts. With the aid of the invention presses can be run all night. In the sorting of cigars it is impossible to tell their color by artificial light. Likewise in dental work
the exact color of artificial teeth cannot be determined at night. In paper
manufacturing and in the manufacture of flour daylight is needed to differentiate the various grades.

Gossip In the Club.

Only one thing is fatal to the happy
social life of any country community, and that is gossip. If the women in their clubs cannot find in the wide
field of housekeeping, chicken raising, preserving, care of children,
public schools, music, art, reading,
public improvements, good government, health, sewing, entertaining
and all other delightful household tasks enough material to lift the meetings above petty personalities,
then the little club or whatever it is called is doomed. Whenever gossip
is allowed to creep into any organization people will begin to break up into little cliques or circles or groups, and the whole thing falls.—

Many people overlook the advantage of newspaper advertising. If the farmer has stock to sell, he can find buyers, if he wants to buy, he can have the sellers come to him. When anything is lost or found, when help is wanted, or a position is sought; when any article from a baby carriage to a pet fox could be exchanged to advantage, a small advertisement in the newspaper will accomplish the desired result.

Nearly everybody can use the advertising columns to advantage at some time, and every person will profit by reading the advertisements regularly.

CHRIST'S COMING WORLD'S END 1914

Not Pastor Russell's View at All
---He Explains His View.

Canadian Minister Quoted - "The Earth Abideth Forever"—Christ Will Not Come Again as a Man, According to the Bible—Pastor Russell Believes That 1914 Marks a Great Change of Dispensation.

of the Son of Man be; they shall be eating, drinking, planting and marrying, and know not." — Matthew 24:37, 38.

The Pastor was prompted to select his text by reading an extract from a recent sermon of a Canadian minister, who declared that 1914 would witness the Second Coming of Christ. The statement permitted the inference that the minister holds the view common to nearly all creeds—that the earth is to be burned up and the human race blotted out; and that Christ will come, to see that none of the Church are destroyed. All such expectations, the Pastor claimed, are wholly unscriptural, untrue, misleading, and a hindrance to a right understanding of the Bible.

Then the Pastor explained in full the various Scriptures commonly supposed to support such views. The wrong interpretations so prevalent, he claimed, belong to the Dark Ages, when public teachers seemed to lose all appreciation of figurative language; and when Christ's references to Gehenna Fire, which burned out come the wall of Jerusalem, were understood to refer to an eternity of torture for all except the saintly few. He showed that St. Peter's words, "the heavens shall be on fire," and "the earth and the things therein shall be burned up," refer to the very period which St. Peter elsewhere calls "Times of Restitution" and blessings—not world-burning—to follow Jesus' Second Coming.

Both the Master and His Apostles, the Pastor asserted, frequently used the word fire as symbolical of tribulation. Among the many Scriptures quoted to substantiate his assertion was St. Peter's exhortation, "Think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which shall try you." Another was St. Paul's parable recorded in 1 Corinthians 3:10-15. This he showed is applicable to present day conditions.

The Pastor quoted many Scriptures to prove that the earth is not to be destroyed; that "the earth abideth forever"; that God "created it not in vain, but formed it to be inhabited." This last prophecy, he claimed, has not yet been fulfilled; for immense tracts of land are still unoccupied. The Divine Plan for

TORONTO, March 23.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 114 cars, comprising 1760 cattle, 128 hogs, 240 sheep and 75 calves.

Butchers.

Choice butchers sold at $3 to $3.25; good, $7.40 to $7.60; medium, $7 to $7.25; common, $6.50 to $6.75; choice cows, $6.75 to $7; good cows, $6.50 to $6.75; medium cows, $6.50 to $6; common cows, $5 to $5.50; canners and cutters, $3.75 to $4.50; bulls, choice, $7 to $7.50; good bulls, $6.50 to $7; medium, $6 to $6.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Stockers and feeders were none too plentiful. Prices of steers, 800 to 900 lbs., at $6.75 to $7; steers, 700 to 800 lbs., at $6.25 to $6.50; stockers sold at from $4.50 to $5.75.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers were light and the demand also was light, and prices ranged from $45 to $85 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts of veal calves were light and prices very firm. Choice calves, $10 to $11; good, $9 to $10; common and medium, $5.75 to $8.

Sheep and Lambs.

The sheep and lamb market was firm. Sheep, light ewes, sold at $6.50 to $7; heavy ewes, $5.75 to $6.25; rams, $5.25 to $6.25; heavy lambs, $8 to $8.75; choice lambs, $9 to $9.75.

Hogs.

Hogs sold at $9.25, fed and watered, and $9.50, weighed off cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, March 23.—Prices at the local stock yards scored a further advance of 25c to 50c per 100 pounds for choice cattle, owing to the small supply of such stock coming forwards. Lower grades were in good demand, butchers generally having allowed their stock to run down to a pretty low level; consequently trade was more active, but sales were principally in small lots to fill actual wants, owing to the near approach of the Easter trade. Some small lots of picked choice steers sold as high as $8.75, and good at $8.25, with a few full loads

LIFE WITH THE ESKIMOS.

Their Flesh Strewn Ice Huts Resemble Slaughter Houses.

My first view of the interior of Uck-Gluck's arctic residence would have been a disheartening one to a tenderfoot. To me, after nine hours of freezing, nothing had ever seemed quite so welcome and cheering as the hollowed out stone in which a liberal quantity of seal oil and moss was burning. (The moss was used as a wick, and so answered the purpose of both lamp and stove.) Three children were crowded together at the end of the igloo staring silently. Uck-Gluck's kooner or woman stood with an infant in her arms, grinning broadly and cheerfully at us.

The room was about eighteen feet in diameter and was a veritable shambles. Uck-Gluck possessed a reputation as being a great hunter, and he had been especially successful of late. Masses of flesh lay strewn all about the floor. There seemed apparently to be no effort or desire to keep it in one or two piles. It lay everywhere. There was the whole carcass of a walrus, cut up and strewn about, and almost directly at the head of the raised "platform" of ice which formed a bed for the whole family there was a great pile of entrails, preserved for dog meat. The walls of the igloo were spattered with blood, and weapons of the chase lay everywhere. These included spears and harpoons, long knives and a rifle that fired powder and ball.

ON HIS OWN CASE.

Fortunate Contradiction That Suffered Him In Court.

A learned lawyer tells a story of a woman from the country who divorced. When the case got to the judge, disregarding for the moment the technical grounds, he found out the real reason for her desire to be separated from her husband. She had lived with her husband for so long. The man himself was in a lawyer, and it looked as if he was going to fight the case. "Well," said the judge, "tell me what you have to find with your husband."

"A liar, a brute, a thief and a fool!" answered the lady.

"But!" exclaimed his honor. "I can hardly prove all that."

WONDERFUL WOOD.

Practically No Limit to the Life of Greenheart.

A wonderful wood is that of a tree called greenheart, which belongs to the laurel family and is reported mainly from the Trinidad and British Guiana.

It is so nearly indestructible that its life is known. It is used in ship and dock building.

It is proof against the white ant and the teredo in salt water. United States government research has been known to stand for over thirty years, and have remained under water for a hundred years in perfectly good condition.

The tree's extraordinary resistance is probably owing to the fact that it is an alkaloid known as biacetyl, also to certain resinous substances known as tyloses. The latter are brown masses of living tissue which grow in solid masses within the tree, which they often fill completely as they grow with the tree, making the wood of the tree black.

The tropical trees, whose growth continues through the year, there are annual growth rings. The trees do not reach maturity under

A greenheart tree is from a hundred feet in height. It is green without knots and has a green crown. The wood weighs twenty-five pounds to the cubic foot and resists a crushing force of over a thousand pounds to the square inch.—Companion.

scattered with blood, and weapons of the chase lay everywhere. These included spears and harpoons, long knives and a rifle that fired powder and ball.

A large quantity of meat, killed earlier in the season, had arrived at the age and stage where it possessed a very bad odor. This was not for the dogs. Uck-Gluck and his family would have fed them the fresh meat before they would have sacrificed this particular pile, which was just reaching that mellow and ripe condition which strongly appeals to their palate.

Bernard and Outta came into the igloo a few moments later, and so delighted were Uck-Gluck and his wife to learn that both of the kabluks or white men were to eat and sleep under their roof that they disported themselves like children, dancing about and laughing and chattering in their own tongue. Bernard told me that in his pleasure Uck-Gluck was saying that in return for the honor the white men were showing him he would give the kabluks the greatest hunting that white men had ever had.

As we had come to hunt, and as Uck-Gluck was noted all along the coast for his prowess, this was highly satisfactory. Bernard brought in his oil stove, and we began at once to prepare our supper, as we had eaten nothing but frozen meat since morning. We fried our own deer meat, heated a number of ship biscuits, a can of corn and a can of tomatoes and made about a gallon of tea. Uck-Gluck and his family accepted the tea and biscuits as great delicacies, but only Ishya, his wife, took advantage of the stove to cook her meat. With their knives the Eskimos cut off chunks from the meat strewn about and devoured it raw, laughing and chuckling as they feasted. One of the children, a boy of seven or eight, ate a strip of pure fat that must have weighed nearly a pound.—James Oliver Curwood in Leslie's.

She Would Get Even.

Tired out with an afternoon's shopping, the mother sat back in her easy chair to recite in detail the afternoon's experiences to a sympathetic home circle.

"The mean thing," sympathetically snapped out six-year-old Ella. "Why didn't you impudent her right back?"—New York Sun.

ations. The Pastor quoted many Scriptures to prove that the earth is not to be destroyed; that "the earth abideth forever"; that God "created it not in vain, but formed it to be inhabited." This last prophecy, he claimed, has not yet been fulfilled; for immense tracts of land are still unoccupied. The Divine Plan for the earth has not yet reached consummation.

The speaker then discussed popular misconceptions respecting the end of the world and showed that these are based upon a misunderstanding, due to the fact that our Common Version Bible uses the word world where the word age, epoch, order of things, would better express the thought of the original. According to Scripture, the present order, of which Satan is ruler, is to give place to a new order of things, under control of Messiah, the Prince of Light.

Next the Pastor demonstrated conclusively from Scripture that our Lord is no longer a human being. Nearly nineteen centuries ago, the Logos left Heavenly glory and was made flesh. God had pronounced a death sentence upon man, from which the race could not be released unless some one would become their redeemer and meet the penalty for their sin. This penalty was death, not eternal torment, of which the Scriptures knew nothing. Our Lord carried out the Divine Program, and as a reward has been highly exalted—"far above angels, principalities and powers."

The speaker then showed that the word coming is used to translate several very different Greek words. One of these is Parousia, meaning presence, and used in reference to the first stage of our Lord's Second Advent. He will be invisibly present. For a while none will realize His Parousia, except the Church. All earthly things will continue as they have—buying, selling, planting, marrying, etc., for a while.

Later on will come the Epiphania—the revelation, or manifestation, not in the flesh, but in a great Time of Trouble, symbolically represented as fire. We read, "He shall be revealed in flaming fire, taking vengeance."

The Pastor understands the Bible to teach that Jesus has thus been present since 1874. The Second Advent began then. The wonderful progress in the world since then Bible students thus explain. They understand the Bible to teach that this Parousia will continue for a thousand years; but that the Epiphania will be due forty years after the Presence began. For this reason they are looking very intently to see what the year may bring forth.

Everywhere we see signs of unrest, a time of trouble brewing. It looks as though this year would mark the beginning of the flaming fire of judgments which will characterize the close of this Age and the inauguration of Messiah's glorious Reign of righteousness and life eternal.

The prospects are that, if supplies continue small for the balance of the week and next week, drovers will realize good prices for choice stock at the Easter market.

The market for hogs was stronger and prices advanced 5c to 20c per 100 pounds for Ontario stock, there being no Manitobas on the market.

A feature of the small-meat trade was the increased supplies of calves coming forward, for which there is a good demand.

SCORPION STINGS.

They Kill Thousands of Persons
Yearly In Mexico.

QUICK WORK OF THE POISON.

The Venom of the Deadly Species, Unless Prompt Treatment Follows the Bite, Will End the Life of the Victim In Twelve or Fourteen Hours.

Four thousand persons are reported to die each year in Mexico from the stings of scorpions.

There are several varieties of scorpions in Mexico, some of them exceedingly venomous and others little feared. In the neighborhood of Tepic the virulent Centurus gracilis abounds, but it is little known about the more northern state of Sonora. It is one of the most venomous creatures in the world.

In the small city of Durango scorpions are perhaps more plentiful and more dangerous than anywhere else in the republic. Here the climate is humid and torrid—it is in the "tierra caliente"—and it is estimated that more than 150,000 scorpions are killed each year, with no appreciable effect on their numbers.

A scorpion resembles a diminutive lobster. Some specimens are eight inches long, though the average length is from two to four inches. The claws closely resemble a lobster's; with them the scorpion crushes its prey after disabling it by means of a sting.

The body of a scorpion consists of several segmented joints, the last five or more narrowing down to form the tail, which curls up forward over the body and terminates in the sting. This businesslike appendage is a horny, sharp spine containing two little openings which connect with the venom gland within the shell of the last segment. In striking the scorpion gives the tail a rapid lashing motion forward in advance of the body and literally administers a hypodermic injection of poison, or rather several injections, for it usually stings repeatedly when it does strike.

In color scorpions vary according to environment. One ordinarily colorless or translucent will assume a brown or blackish shade in dark surroundings. Scorpions live in the cracks of the sun baked clay, under stones, in the chinks of the adobe butts and in the cracks in the plaster of old frame houses. They prey upon spiders and other night marauding insects. A spider stung by a scorpion may be observed undergoing convulsions before death just as animals or human beings do.

Unless sleeping cots are well screened and the supports immersed in cans of kerosene or carbolic acid—water evaporates too rapidly—the prowling scorpion may find its way beneath the bed covers and sting the restless child. By nature it is a nocturnal pest. In Mexico every one takes a peep in the toe of his shoe before dressing in the morning to assure himself that no undesirable citizen is hiding there.

Contrary to common belief scorpions never commit suicide by stinging themselves to death—at least not in Mexico. In fact they seem immune to their

WHAT DE THEBES S

Famous Seerss Makes Her
Predictions For 1914.

What will the new year bring?

This is the time of year when folks lock with curiosity to the publication of the almanac of Thebes. The seerss has been dictating coming events for years, and the conspicuous about her predictions is that they have transpired. There have been failures, to be sure; but have been many things that come to pass just as she foretold.

It was she who predicted of Khartoum and she it was phesied the assassination of Carnot, President of the French Republic, who was stabbed to death by Caserio while driving through the city of Lyons. Queen Victoria was also foretold by this seeress woman one year before it came while her most startling prediction was that of the death of I. Felix Faure. It will be recalled that Faure passed away suddenly in the prime of life and while enjoying apparently, the best of health.

Now what does she see in the future, what for 1914? These are the predictions:

War will continue to menage the world, as the planet Mars dominates throughout the year.

A terrible catastrophe is predicted for London. The city will be threatened by floods as a result of tides.

The monarchy will be resuscitated in Portugal.

Profound changes amounting to political upheaval will take place in Germany and the national liberation will be completely effected.

The death of the Pope is predicted and this event will bring about a great change in Italy. The Russian revolution will be more friendly to the Russian Government.

Riots will occur in Austria. There will be bloodshed in the streets of Vienna. The Austro-Hungarian empire will be sorely tried and in grave peril.

Paris will have a favorable outlook, but the republic of France, as a whole, will be afflicted with disorders and riots.

American will have a prosperous year.

How many of these predictions will come true is a question impossible to answer, but a glance at the prophecies for 1913 made by the seerss is of special interest in this connection.

In her "Almanac for 1913" de Thebes predicted a series of unusual events, all of which were either improbable, and some most unexpected have come to pass. She announced that 1913, taken as a whole, would be a bloody year, a second war in the Balkans, Mexican revolution certainly that prediction.

Bulgaria, she said, would play a stupendous role in Europe. Recent events have proved strangely prophetic.

Another prediction included in the forecast of the French seeress was that Italy would witness a great political upheaval during the year. Here again have recent events proved Mme. de Thebes' words.

At the general elections held in the kingdom of Vicenza, at which men of all parties were for the first time permitted to vote, changes of vital importance

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

Mexico every one takes a peep in the toe of his shoe before dressing in the morning to assure himself that no undesirable citizen is hiding there.

Contrary to common belief scorpions never commit suicide by stinging themselves to death—at least not in Mexico. In fact, they seem immune to their own venom. Two well matched specimens will battle to death if confined in a jar, stinging each other repeatedly, yet the victor does not die. He tears his antagonist into small pieces with his claws and voraciously devours every trace of the vanquished foe. And the cannibal thrives on the diet.

Some scorpion bites cause little more than burning pain and numbness in the part affected for a few days. But the more poisonous varieties cause death, and that speedily, especially when they sting young children or debilitated old people. The lower classes of people suffer more than the well to do because of their custom of going about half naked most of the time.

In serious cases the local numbness and pain or burning extend over the body in a few hours. Then follows a feeling as of a ball in the throat, the victim clutching his throat as though choking on a foreign body. Prompt treatment at this stage will usually save life.

If not treated the mouth soon begins to froth and the eyes become reddened and hypersensitive to light. Within an hour or two the breathing grows shorter and more difficult, the body turns blue, the pulse fails and convulsions set in. The convulsions recur frequently during several hours, but complete relaxation usually ushers in the end.

Fortunately unconsciousness develops early, so that the victim does not suffer the tortures of one dying from lockjaw. The average time required for a scorpion sting to cause death is twelve or fourteen hours.

The treatment of scorpion sting consists of a free incision of the part to promote copious bleeding, then vigorous massage toward the bleeding center for half an hour or more. Stimulants—meaning drugs and not that pseudo stimulant, alcohol—are also necessary.

In villages where physicians are wanting the treatment is applied by "practicantes"—ignorant, self constituted healers, and many a peon carries horrible scars from the practicante's crude surgery. Their reckless use of carbolic acid, iodine and similar poisons also accounts for many otherwise avoidable fatalities among victims of scorpion stings.—New York Sun.

Difficulties may surround our path, but if the difficulties be not in ourselves they may generally be overcome.—Jowett.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

GENERAL ELECTION.

Every indication points to a general
election in Ontario, possibly in June and at any rate not later than the Fall. The Government has never been as weak as this year. The House is absolutely without a leader and confusion is reigning most of the time,
with the result that the Government,
already in the first month of the Session, has made an astonishingly
large number of blunders which have lead to severe criticisms not only from the Opposition but from sections of the Government press. The question of leadership in succession to Sir James Whitney is no nearer solution than it was six weeks ago. It is thought now that the Government will go to the country under the nominal leadership of Sir James Whitney in an effort to hold the party together. The general election in those circumstances will not be a contest between Rowell and Whitney
but one between Rowell and Hanna.
Enough has developed against Hanna already and enough more is likely to develop to make it easy for the people
of Ontario to decide who should be Prime Minister—Hanna or Rowell.

ALL NIGHT DISTURBANCE.

An all night Session of the House
with much disorder, with many appeals against the ruling of the Chair
and with threats of "naming" several members, marked the efforts of the Government to force through at one sitting a Bill to indemnify, among others unmentioned, Howard Ferguson, Conservative Member for Grenville, who, by accepting a commission
from the Dominion Government, had forfeited his seat in the Legislature
and had laid himself open to a fine of $2,000 a day. The Indemnity Bill, which the Government forced through
the House, was a general measure absolving all members who had thus broken the law and allowing them to continue in the future.

The Opposition, led by Mr. Rowell, fought from three o'clock in the afternoon till five o'clock next morning—
first, against the attempt of the Government by absolutely illegal means
to over-ride the rights of the minority and force through this Bill with its three readings in one day, which, with the Opposition opposed, could only be done by the irregular suspension of the rules; second, against the general nature of the Bill. Mr. Rowell made it clear that he was not opposed to relieving Ferguson if the latter would declare that he had made his mistake
in ignorance of the law, but Mr.
Rowell pointed out that this Bill was
a letting down of the bars and an encouragement of corruption rather than a discouragement.

Moreover, Hon. Mr. Hanna repeatedly affirmed that a general Bill had to go through because there were other members in the same box. Mr.
Rowell demanded their names, but up to the present they have not been disclosed. Mr. Rowell claimed that the general public had a perfect right to know who these men were and that there was no justification for the Government to conceal them. The appeal was finally jammed through by the Government's majority which, however, was opposed strenuously at every step.

SUBSIDY FOR RADIALS.

Thomas Marshall, Liberal Member
for Monk, has an important notice on the order paper calling for Dominion aid to Hydro Radials in Ontario. It expressed a gratification that the general movement among the Municipalities of the Province to secure im-

Commission and would respectfully
memorialize the Government of the Dominion of Canada to grant to Hydro Electric Radial Railways constructed by or for the benefit of the Municipalities of the Province under the direction of the Hydro Electric Power Commission, a subsidy in all respects equal to that of steam railways under the provision of the Act governing the granting of subsidies to aid in the construction of railways.

It is interesting to note that it was the Liberal Opposition, through Mr.
Marshall, who also led the way last year in connection with the Hydro Radials. A resolution urging the adoption of this policy was voted down
by the Government but before the close of the Session, Legislation along
the same line was passed by them giving the Hydro Commission power to extend its activities to the building of Radials in co-operation with Municipalities.

LEGISLATURE NOTES.

At last, after seven years, the Workmen's Compensation Act has been introduced into the Legislature. It was brought in by Hon. Mr. Lucas and its main outline follows the draft bill of Sir William Meredith. It will be taken up by the House in detail during the next few weeks.

The Liberals moved a vote of censure on the Government for presenting such an incomplete financial statement that the public of the Province
could not find out from it the financial position.

RUNNING SLACK.

Editorial from Toronto Wold, Conservative.

Signs are not wanting that, altho
the provincial government continues
to do good work, as in the introduction of the compensation bill, there is a gradual slackening of the tone, a relaxation of the high tension which kept all things moving, as it were,
towards the golden year. Whether it be a loosening of discipline or an accretion of barnacles or the slipshod
methods of over-confidence or the contempt that comes with familiarity, all governments seem to tread the same path. It was hoped that the Whitney Government would be different, but there are signs which are evident enough. When a government does things which it would not tolerate for a moment if it were in opposition instead of in power, it is time for it to consider its ways.

It only takes a turnover of a few
per cent., two or three hundred, to upset the strongest government. It may seem very dreadful that two or three per cent. of the voters should hold the government in the hollow of their hands. It seems so incredible that governments pay no attention to them and gradually come to devote all
their consideration to their own professed supporters. Then the incredible thing happened.

There are a lot of people in Ontario
wondering why Mr. G. Howard Ferguson is so indispensable to the government that special legislation has to be passed to save his political life. Mr. Ferguson's personal merits
are quite aside from the question.
Either he should not have been appointed, or he should have resigned his seat when appointed. The other course was to have repealed the law
before the appointment, not after the law was violated. The opposition
"has it" on the government, and will no doubt make the most of the opportunity. At the best it represents the slackening up of the system. The government would not have so acted in 1906.

THE OLD STAGE HERO.

He of the Mid-Victorian Age Has Gone
From Us Forever.

The stage hero of the mid-Victorian
age wept on all the available articles
of furniture when his manly heart was wrung. He was certain to observe a noble silence at exactly the wrong time, enabling the gay and glittering gentleman who was more than suspected of being an atheist to get the girl. He was cross once in a while, when he was keeping another's
secret at the expense of his own character and somebody took him at his word.

But oh, how dependable he was!
How sure to meet a train or make an excellent omelet if the fragile heroine had mislaid the cookbook! How strong
he was and how fond of carrying people upstairs. How well he brought up his first wife's children if he was a widower, or the heroine if he was her guardian!

He will not come again—not he nor such as he. He has passed, always with a certain dignity, his heroine's
drooping curls brushing his protecting arm, into the country of last year's snow, and year before last's presidential candidate, and all forgotten, irre-coverable things. And, as his favorite author, the Swan of Avon, said, "We shall not gaze upon his like again."—

WHICH WOULD YOU CHOOSE?

All the Land In Great Britain or Calico
to Cover It?

If—and don't forget the "if"—you were offered as a present either all the land in the United Kingdom or a piece of cheap, common calico of the same area, which would you choose?

Probably, without a moment's hesitation, you would say, "The land" and would imagine that you had got very much the better of the bargain. From one point of view, of course, this would be so, for land lasts longer than does calico. On the other hand, however,
you would be choosing very much the
cheaper of the two offered gifts.

The land of the United Kingdom, including town areas, is estimated to be worth £2,500,000,000. A piece of cheap calico of the same size as the United Kingdom would cost more than £9,000,- 000,000.

Difficult to believe, isn't it? Still, the facts cannot be denied. Average agricultural land may be reckoned as being worth £20 an acre; building land,
say, twenty-five miles from Charliz
Cross, £100 an acre; ten miles from Charlize Cross, £700 an acre. Now, a common calico costs £121 an acre, a good calico £200, while a good quality
hugely wide £750 and an ordinary
Turkey carpet £2,330 an acre.—London

The Husbands of Edith

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

the airshaft. He had to go down one flight for his morning tub, and he never got it because he refused to stand in line and await his turn. Mrs. Medcroft had the choicest room in the hotel, looking down upon the beautiful Karntner-Ring. Constance proposed, in the goodness of her heart, to give up to Brock her own room, adjoining that of her sister, provided Edith would take her in to sleep with her. Edith was perfectly willing, but interposed the sage conclusion that gossiping menials might not appreciate a preference so unique.

Roxbury Medcroft's sky parlor adjoined the elevator shaft. The head of his bed was in close proximity to the upper mechanism of the lift, a thin wall intervening. A French architect, who had a room hard by, met Brock in the hall, hollow eyed and haggard, on the morning after their first night. He shouted lugubrious congratulations in Brock's ear, just as if Brock's ear had not been harassed a whole night long by shrieking wheels and rasping cables.

"Monsieur is very fortunate in being so afflicted."

"Monsieur is very fortunate in being so afflicted," he boomed. "A thousand times in the night have I wished that I might be deaf also. Ah! Even an affliction such as yours, monsieur, has its benedictions."

Matters drifted along smoothly, even merrily, for several days. They were all young and full of the joy of living. They laughed in secret over the mishaps and perils. They whiffed and enjoyed the spice that filled the atmosphere in which they lived. They visited the gardens and the hofs, the chateau at Schonbrunn, the imperial stables, the gay "Venice in Vienna," they attended the opera and the concerts, ever in a most circumspect "trinity," as Brock had come to classify their parties. Like a dutiful husband, he always included his wife in the expeditions.

"You are not only a most exemplary wife, Mrs. Medcroft," he declared, "but

ers, in each of which the luckless Medcroft was taken to task for advocating an impractical and famous New York hobby in the way of construction, something that staid old London would not even tolerate or discuss. The social chroniclings of the Medcrofts in Vienna as dispatched by the correspondents offset this unhappy "bull" to some extent in so far as Medcroft's peace of mind was concerned, but nothing could have drawn attention to the fact that he was not in London at that particular time so decisively as the Vienna interview and its undefended front. Even his shrewdest enemy could not have suspected Medcroft of a patience which would permit him to sit quiet in London while the attacks were going on. He found some small solace in the reflection that he could make the end justify the means.

On their return to the Bristol, Brock and Miss Fowler found the fair Edith in a pitiful state of collapse. She declared over and over again that she could not face the Rodneys. It was more than should be expected of her. She was sure that something would go wrong. Why—oh, why was it necessary to deceive the Rodneys? Why should they be kept in the dark? Why wasn't Roxbury there to counsel wisely, and more, ad infinitum, until the distracted pair were on the point of deserting the cause. She finally dissolved into tears, and would not listen to reason, expostulation or persuasion. It was then that Brock cruelly but effectively declared his intention to abdicate, as he also had a reputation to preserve. Whereupon, with a fine sense of distinction she flared up and accused him of treachery to his best friend, Roxbury Medcroft, who was reposing the utmost confidence in his friendship and loyalty. How could she be expected to go on with the play if the man upon whom everything depended, was to turn tail in a critical hour like this?

"How can you have the heart to spoil everything?" she cried indignantly. He looked at her in fresh amazement. "Roxbury would never forgive you. We have both placed the utmost confidence in you, Mr. Brock, and"—

"Sh! Say, 'Roxbury, dear,'" interposed the practical Constance. "The walls may have ears, my dears."

Then Mrs. Medcroft plaintively implored his forgiveness and said that she was miserable and ashamed and very unappreciative. Brock, in deep humility, begged her pardon for his unnecessary harshness, and promised not to offend again.

"The first quarrel," cried Constance delightedly. "How nicely you've made it up. And you've been married less than a week!"

"Roxbury and I didn't have our first quarrel until we'd been married a year," said Edith reflectively.

"Oh, I say, Edith," exclaimed Brock, with a dark frown. "I'd rather you wouldn't be forever extolling the good qualities of my predecessor. It's very bad taste. Very much like the pie mother used to make."

"Silly!" cried Medcroft's wife, now in fine humor.

"Besides, Rox is an Englishman. It would take him a year to produce a quarrel. The American husband is not so confounded slow. I won't live up to Roxbury in everything."

It was decided that Constance should greet the Rodneys upon their arrival. The Medcrofts were not to appear un-

lent protestations of love, uttering those recent days in Paris, threatened to throw himself Seine; she remembered that qu—and also the fact that he did of the sort, but had a very job at Maxim's and sent her flow of repentance. Knowing so well, it would not have her in the least to find that he come engaged to Katherine. E was a very flexible organ.

"Oh," said Katherine, "I believe did say that you had mentioned Of herself she was asking, 'I she is in love with him?'"

And thus it transpired that Ulstervelt—addled, good, inconstant Freddie, just out of—was transformed into a bone tention, whether he would or n

At one station Brock narrowly escaped missing the train. He swung himself aboard as the cars were rolling out of the sheds. As he sank, hot and exhausted, into the seat opposite his wife and her sister the former looked up from her book, yawning ever so faintly, and asked:

"Are you enjoying your honeymoon, Roxbury?"

"Immensely!" he exclaimed, but not until he had searched for and caught Connie's truant gaze. "Aren't we?" he asked of Miss Fowler, his eyes dancing. She smiled encouragingly.

"I think you are such a nice man to have about," commented Mrs. Medcroft, this time yawning freely and stretching her fine young arms in the luxury of home contentment.

Brock went to bed early in Vienna that night, tired but happy, caring not what the morrow brought forth so long as it continued to provide him with a sister-in-law and a wife who was devoted—to another man.

CHAPTER V.

The Distant Cousins.

THE end of the week found Brock quite thoroughly domesticated—to use an expression supplied by his new sister-in-law. True, he had gone through some trying ordeals and had lost not a little of his sense of locality, but he was rapidly recovering it as the pathway became easier and less obscure. At first he was irritatingly remiss in answering to the name of Medcroft; but, to justify the stupidity, it is only necessary to say that he had fallen into a condition which scarcely permitted him to know his own name, much less that of another. He was under the spell. Wherefore it did not matter at all what name he went by. He would have answered as readily to one as the other.

He blandly ignored telegrams and letters addressed to Roxbury Medcroft, and once he sat like a lump, with every one staring at him, when the chairman of the architects' convention asked if Mr. Medcroft had anything to say on the subject under discussion. He was forced, in some confusion, to attribute his heedlessness to a lifelong defect in hearing. Thereafter it was his punishment to have his name and fragments of conversation hurled about in tones so stentorian that he blushed for very shame. In the Bristol, in the Karntner-Ring, in the Lichtenstein gallery, in the gardens—no matter where he went—if he were to be accosted by any of the genial architects it was always in a voice that attracted attention. He could have heard them if they had been a block away. It became a habit with him to instinctively lift his hand to his ear when one of them hove in sight, having seen him first.

"That's what I get for being a liar," he lamented dolefully. Constance had just whispered her condolences. "Do you think they'll consider it odd that you don't shout at me too?"

"You might explain that you can tell what I am saying by looking at my lips," she said. He was immensely relieved.

Considerable difficulty had to be overcome at the Bristol in the matter of rooms. Without going into details Brock resignedly took the only room left in the crowded hotel, a 6 by 10 cubby hole on the top floor overlooking the gardens and the imperial stables, the gay "Venice in Vienna;" they attended the opera and the concerts, ever in a most circumspect "trinity," as Brock had come to classify their parties. Like a dutiful husband, he always included his wife in the expeditions.

"You are not only a most exemplary wife, Mrs. Medcroft," he declared, "but an unusually agreeable chaperon. I don't know how Constance and I could get on without you."

But the day of the arrival was now at hand. The Rodneys were arriving on the fifth day from Berlin. Despite the fact that the Seattle "connections" had never seen the illustrious Medcroft, husband to their distant cousin, there still remained the disturbing fear that they would recognize—or, rather fail to recognize him—from chance pictures that might have come to their notice. Besides, there was always the possibility that they had seen or even met Brock in New York. He lugubriously admitted that he had met unfortunate thousands whom he had promptly forgotten, but who seldom failed to remember him. It is not surprising, then, that the Medcrofts, ex parte, were in a state of perturbation—a condition which did not relax in the least as the time drew near for the arrival of the 5 o'clock train from the north. Constance strove faithfully, even valiantly, to inject confidence into the souls of the prime conspirators.

"You have done so beautifully up to this time," she protested to the dolorous Brock, "why should you be afraid? I once read of an Indian chief whose name was Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Wife. He was a very brave fellow in spite of all that. You are afraid of Edith, but can't you be like the Indian? He?"

"That's all very nice," mourned Brock. "But he could cover his confusion with war paint. Don't forget that, my dear. Think of the difference in our disguises—war paint in daubs versus spats and an eyeglass! Besides, he didn't have to talk west end English. And, moreover, he lived in a wigwam and didn't have to explain a sky bedroom to strangers who happened along."

"That is a bit awkward," she confessed thoughtfully. "But can't you say that you have insomnia and can't sleep unless you are above the noise of the street?"

He looked at her with an expression that made a verbal reply to this suggestion altogether unnecessary.

"Nurse says that Tootles has forgotten the real Roxbury," she went on after a moment. "See how cleverly you have played the part."

Still he stared moodily, unconvinced, at the roadway ahead. They were driving in the Haupt Allee.

"I hope I haven't got Roxbury into trouble by that interview I gave out concerning the new method of fire-proofing woodwork in office buildings and hotels. It occurred to me afterward that he is violently opposed to the system. I advocated it. He'll have a—I might say a devil of a time explaining his change of front."

As a matter of fact, when Medcroft, hiding in London, saw the reproduced interview in the Times, together with editorial comments upon the extraordinary attitude of a supposedly conservative Englishman of recognized ability, he was tried almost beyond endurance. For the next two or three days the newspapers printed caustic contributions from fellow architects and build-

"Silly!" cried Medcroft's wife, now in fine humor.

"Besides, Rox is an Englishman. It would take him a year to produce a quarrel. The American husband is not so confounded slow. I won't live up to Roxbury in everything."

It was decided that Constance should greet the Rodneys upon their arrival. The Medcrofts were not to appear until dinner time. Afterward the entire party would attend the opera, which was then in the closing week. Brock with splendid prodigality had taken a box for the final performance of "Tristan and Isolde." It is not out of place to remark that Brock loathed the Wagnerian opera. He was of "The Mikado" cult. He took the seats with a definite purpose in mind to cast the burden of responsibility upon his wife, who would be forced to extend herself in the capacity of hostess, giving him the much needed opportunity to secure safe footing in the dark area of uncertainty. He believed himself capable of diverting the youthful Miss Rodney and his discreet sister-in-law, but he was consumed by an unholo dread of Rodney pere. Something told him that this shrewd American business man was not the kind who would have the wool pulled over his eyes by any one. Brock felt that the support of Constance was of greater value than that of Edith at any stage or in any emergency.

Besides, he was now quite palpably in love with her. "I've got it bad!" he reflected in sober consideration of his plight; "but," came the ironic justification, "I'm able to confine it to the immediate family. That's more than most husbands can say."

CHAPTER VI.

Freddie Ulstervelt.

THE Rodneys descended upon the Bristol at 5 o'clock, rushing down from the Nord-Bahnhof as if there was not a minute to spare. Constance pursued Katherine to her room, where they revelled in the delights of a reunion, gradually coming out of its throes as the hour for dressing approached.

"We dine early, dear," said Constance, "with supper after the opera. I must be off to dress."

"I am so eager to meet Mr. Medcroft. Is he nice?"

"He's the dearest thing in the world!" cried the other, her cheeks aglow.

"I'm so glad, on Edith's account. Most of these English matches turn out abominably," commented Miss Rodney, who was twenty, very pretty and very worldly. "Oh, did I tell you that Freddie Ulstervelt is with us?"

"No!"

"We came across him in Berlin, and dad asked him to join us if he had nothing better to do, so he said he would. He was with us in Dresden and Prague and—don't you think he's awfully jolly?"

"Ripping!" said Constance with deplorable fervor.

"How awfully English! He said he'd seen you in Paris this spring."

"Yes," said Miss Fowler, her cheeks going red suddenly. "I told him you'd asked me to be with you in June." She could have cut out her tongue for saying this, but it was too late. Katherine laughed a trifle hardly after a stiff moment; then a queer light flitted in to her eyes—the light of awakened opposition. Constance was saying to herself: "She's in love with Freddie I might have known it." Back in her brain lay the memory of Freddie's vio-

vivacious, never so resourceful. Brock was under the spell; he was fascinated; he had to look to himself carefully in order to keep his wits in the prescribed channel.

His self esteem received a severe shock at the opera. Mrs. Medcroft, with malice aforethought, insisted that Ulstervelt should take her husband's seat. As the box held but six persons, the unfortunate Brock was compelled to shift more or less for himself. Inwardly raging, he suavely assured the party—Freddie in particular—that he would find a seat in the body of the house and would join them during the entr'acte. Then he went out and sat in the foyer. It was fortunate that he hated Wagner. Before the end of the act he was joined by Mr. Rodney, horribly bored and eager for relief. In a nearby cafe they had a whisky and soda apiece and, feeling comfortably re-enforced, returned to the opera house arm in arm, long and short, thin and fat, liberally discoursing upon the intellectuality of Herr Wagner.

"Say, you're not at all like an Englishman!" exclaimed Mr. Rodney impulsively, even gratefully.

"Eh, what?" gasped Brock, replacing his eyeglass. "Oh, I say, now, 'pon my word, haw, haw!"

"You've got an American sense of humor, Medcroft—that's what you have. You recognize the joke that Wagner played on the world. Pardon me for saying it, sir, but I didn't think it was in an Englishman."

"Haw, haw! Rippling, by Jove! No no! Not you. I mean the joke. But, then, you see, it's been so long since Wagner played it that even an Englishman has had time to see the point. Besides, I've lived a bit of my life in America."

"That accounts for it," said the tactless but sincere Mr. Rodney.

Brock glared so venomously at the intrusive Mr. Ulstervelt upon the occasion of his next visit to his own box that Mrs. Medcroft smiled softly to herself as she turned her face away. A few minutes later she seized the opportunity to whisper in his ear. Her eyes were sparkling, and something in her manner bespoke of bated breath.

"You are in love with my sister," was what she said to him. He blushed convincingly.

"Nonsense!" he managed to reply, but without much persuasiveness.

"But you are. I'm not blind. Any one can see it. She sees it. Haven't you sense enough to hide it from her? How do you expect to win?"

"My dear Mrs.—my dear Edith, you amaze me. I'm confusion itself; but," he went on eagerly, illogically, "do you think I could win her?"

"That is not for one's wife to say," she said demurely.

"I'd be tremendously proud of you as a sister-in-law. And I'd be much obliged if you'd help me. But look at that confounded Ulstervelt! He's making love to her with the whole house looking on."

"I think it might be polite if you were to ask him out for a drink," she suggested.

"But I've had one, and I never take two."

"Model husband! Then take the girls into the foyer for a stroll and a chat after the act. Don't mind me. I'm your friend."

"Do you think I've got a chance with her?" he asked with a brave effort.

"But I have you—I can count on your approval?" he whispered eagerly.

"Don't, Roxbury! People will think you are making love to me," she protested, willfully ignoring his question.

He returned to the box after the second act and proposed a turn in the foyer. To his disgust, Ulstervelt appropriated Constance and left him to follow with Mrs. Rodney and Katherine. He almost hated Edith for the tantalizing smile she shot after him as he moved away, defeated.

If he was glaring luridly at the irrepressible Freddie, he was not alone in his gloom. Katherine Rodney, green with jealousy, was sending spiteful glances after her dearest friend, while Mrs. Rodney was sniffing the air as if it were laden with frost.

"Don't you think Connie is a perfect dear? I'm so fond of her," said Miss Rodney, so sweetly that he should have detected the nether flow.

He started and pulled himself together. "Aw, yes—ripping!" He consciously adjusted his eyeglass for a hasty glance about in search of the easily disturbed Mr. Rodney. Then, to Mrs. Rodney, his mind a blank after a passing glimpse of Constance and her escort: "Aw—er—a perfectly jolly opera, isn't it?"

CHAPTER VII.

The Would Be Brother-in-law.

THE next morning, bright and early, Mr. Alfred Rodney, a telegram in his hand, charged down the hall to Mrs. Medcroft's door. With characteristic fast west impulsiveness he banged on the door. A sleepy voice asked who was there.

"It's me—Rodney. Get up. I want to see Medcroft. Say, Roxbury, wake up!"

"Roxbury?" came in shrill tones from within. "He— Isn't he upstairs? Good heaven, Mr. Rodney, what has happened? What has happened?"

"Upstairs? What the deuce is he doing upstairs?"

"He's—he's sleeping! Do tell me what's the matter!"

"Isn't this Mr. Medcroft's room?"

"Ye-es—but he isn't in. He objects to the noise. Oh, has anything happened to Roxbury?" She was standing just inside the door, and her voice betrayed agitation.

"My dear Edith, don't get excited. I have a telegram from"—

She uttered a shriek.

"He's been assassinated! Oh, Roxbury!"

"What the dev— Are you crazy? It's a telegram from"—

"Oh, heavens! I knew they'd kill him; I knew something dreadful would happen if I left"— Here she stopped suddenly. He distinctly heard her catch her breath. After a moment she went on warily, "Is it from a man named Hobart?"

"No. It's from Odell-Carney. Hobart? I don't know anybody named Hobart." (How was he to know that Hobart was the name that Medcroft

FEED AND MILK FLAVOR.

Experiment Disproves Theory Concerning Effect of Oats.

The statement has been frequently made by dairymen that the feeding of crushed oats to cows improves the flavor of the milk, says the American Agriculturist. It is interesting to note that this matter was tested out by the federal department of agriculture. A ration of cornmeal, bran and cottonseed was fed as against a grain mixture of crushed oats and cottonseed meal. Samples of milk were taken from the cows fed these rations and submitted to different individuals to express their preference without knowing anything in regard to the source of the milk. In all fifty opinions were passed on various samples. Of these sixteen showed a preference for the milk from cows fed on crushed oats, twenty-five preferred that from the bran and corn ration, while nine expressed no choice.

These results show that on these rations there was no marked difference in favor of crushed oats as a feed to improve flavor. If anything, the ration containing bran and corn was more successful in producing milk of a finer flavor than the crushed oats.

Cow Exposure Costly.

A fine herd of cows was left out in a cold rain recently, says the Farm Journal. The cows' yield shrank one-half at the next milking. This exposure caused a loss in dollars, and it will cost more dollars to put the cows back on the same paying basis.

SILAGE AND OILMEAL FOR BEEF PRODUCTION

The man who feeds silage and oilmeal this year can make beef at less than 7 cents a pound, and at that price he is bound to make money, even if good feeders have cost him 7 cents in the feed lot, says J. R. Brown in the Orange Judd Farmer. He who depends on ear corn and corn fodder for the ration cannot make beef for less than 12 cents a pound, and if he is going to get pay for his feed there must be a pretty good margin between the feeder price and the selling price of the fat steer.

I have become much interested in the results that have been obtained at the South Dakota experiment station during the past two years in feeding yearling steers on corn silage and high protein concentrates. Two years ago yearlings made daily gains of 2.4 pounds for a ninety day period on rations of silage and oilmeal and silage and cottonseed meal. Last year even better results were obtained in a 146 day period. For example, one lot of yearlings consumed on the average forty-eight pounds of corn silage and three pounds of oilmeal a day, and on this they gained 2.45 pounds a day, or a total of 358 pounds in 146 days. Another lot consumed an average of forty-one pounds of silage and three pounds of cottonseed meal a day during the same period and gained a total of 283 pounds, or 1.95 pounds a day.

At present corn is worth 60 cents on the farm in most parts of the territory referred to, while oilmeal can be purchased at $30 a ton in car lots. At this price of corn, silage is worth about $3.50 a ton, for a fifty bushel corn crop will generally make ten tons of silage. At these feed valuations the lot of steers fed on oilmeal made gains at $5.25 per 100 pounds. Can that be equaled with any other ration at current prices of feeding stuffs? I doubt it, and that's why I say that the successful feeder of the future will have to make use of the silo.

DAIRY WISDOM.

Improper handling at first milking will often prove irritability. A kicker is the result of a first milking one who cannot hold his under trying circumstances.

FATTENING LAMBS

Oilmeal a More Economical Cottonseed Meal.

That oilmeal is much more economical to feed lambs than cotton meal has been shown by many says the Iowa Homestead. The most interesting tests showed an average of 11-3 cents per pound cost of producing lambs in fat oilmeal.

One lot of lambs as near as possible was fed a ration of one part oilmeal and cornmeal. In addition to this were allowed free access to pasture.

Having access to a similar the other lot was fed a ration of one part cottonseed meal and cornmeal.

At the time this test was the price of oilmeal was $2 and the price of cottonseed per ton. So, in addition to matter gains, the oilmeal cost ton.

Lot No. 1, which was fed meal, made a weekly gain of 2.95 pounds per lamb, while the cottonseed meal made a weekly gain of 2.95 pounds per lamb.

With the oilmeal it cost $100 pounds of lamb represented gain. In the lot fed cottonseed meal it cost $13 pounds gain.

But, in addition to this, the oilmeal gained more pounds. The result was a cost of 2 cents for the gain made by the lambs on oilmeal ration, while the gain made by the lambs on cottonseed meal cost 3 cents per pound.

PUTTING COLTS TO WORK.

Young Drafters Should Be In Harness at Two Years of Age.

All horses destined for a life of servitude should be broken the winter before they are two years old, says John Mason in the National Stockman. If of draft blood and fairly grown, weighing, say, 1,400 pounds the spring they are two years old, they may be made to do a lot of work, but the breaking process should be undertaken long before the necessity for working them shall arise. Draft bred youngsters are always easily broken to harness. If the job is to be done right a biting harness should be used, and when the mouth is toughened to the bit the colt should be driven around with the lines to teach him to guide, to stop at the word "Whoa" and to start at the command. Be sure to teach him to stop at once when he hears the "Whoa." That is essential.

When he has learned the elementary principles hitch him either to a cart alone or alongside a steady old horse with a prompt step and go ahead. It is not a hard job nor yet a laborious or tedious one, but it is one that should always be done thoroughly. Two-year-old draft bred colts will do a lot of work in cropping season, but of course should be worked only half days at a time against older horses or perhaps not so long.

Foot Rot In Sheep.

When you have trouble from foot rot among sheep always separate the affected animals and place them in a dry, clean pen or yard, says Dr. A. S. Alexander in the Farm and Fireside. Also change the other sheep to new, sound, dry pasture. Ordinary treatment for foot rot of sheep consists in cutting away every part of diseased hoof, then immersing the treated foot in a hot solution of sulphate of copper and at once turning the sheep into a pen on the floor of which three or four inches of slaked lime has been spread. Keep the sheep there for a few hours until the treated feet are well covered with lime. Repeat the treatment as often as found necessary.

Work the Stallion.

Making the stallion earn his feed by moderate work outside the actual breeding season will leave the fees from his breeding service practically clear gain, besides insuring him a more vigorous constitution for transmitting to his offspring.

TABLE SILVER.

Modern Ware Reproductions of Old Colonial Designs.

Colonial silver is, owing to its simplicity, "the" correct thing in tableware at this time. Each piece has the paneled sides and the simple classic lines unbroken by any ornamentation save the single engraved initial in old English text.

Silver of this kind will make very acceptable gifts for the spring bride. The quaint old time baking dishes with the paneled lids, the compotes and tall salt cups, the "well and tree" platters with their delicate thread line borders, all are as attractive as can be.

Even the flat serving pieces have the long, straight handles with just a slight flare at the top. Those who designed them intended that they should be strong as well as beautiful.

The candlesticks are patterned after the old colonial ones of pewter which held the big, thick bayberry candles. Some of them are double, the outer covering being of pierced silver. The bases are very wide and flat and there are high colonial handles.

Some of them have the silver snuff-ers fastened at one side. These candlesticks are very decorative and form quaint ornaments for the dining room furnished in colonial style.

In the shops one sees duplicates of the old fashioned cake baskets which our mothers had before us and which we promptly relegated to the attic when we took a hand at managing the house.

The silver mounted muffin and bon-bon carriers are again in vogue, and certainly they are pretty and convenient things for graceful serving at afternoon tea.

The carriers come in two, three or four tiers and hold out crystal dishes for olives, almonds or salted nuts or Royal Worcester or Doulton plates for the muffins or sandwiches.

The English wares are all very popular, particularly Sheffield plate, which bears as honored a name as though it were sterling.

The real old Sheffield is silver plated on copper, and the copper, after a time, has been known to peep through, so that many people buy a modern form of Sheffield which is plated on nickel and which will not show up the occasional spots.

MABEL'S CHITCHAT

Civic Pride More Often a Product of the Small Town.

COURTESY OF TRAFFIC POLICE

Wedding Presents a Tax on Purse Strings—Society of Soured Spinners Will Institute Annual Reception and Distribution of Gifts.

Dear Elsa—I have just finished reading a delightfully characteristic letter from Charlotte S. You possibly remember my telling you that several years ago she decided to leave the rush and bustle of New York for the simple life in a charming little California town. That the exchange of residence has been a happy one the following, quoted from her letter, abundantly proves:

"Well, how is little old New York? It seems to be able to worry along without me somehow, though, of course, there must be a lack somewhere if people only stopped long enough to notice it.

"My, how wild and woolly I'll feel if I ever get back! But do you know that I, a bred in the bone Gothamite, have grown to like this place even better than the 'old town'? You see, I know so many people whose interests are one with mine, and it seems as though I was more a part of it all than I was in the old New York life. You can hardly imagine the extent of civic pride the people out here have, so much more than I ever noticed in the east."

Civic pride! I've been hunting for the last half hour in my bureau of sentiment to find some feeling of municipal elation lurking in my soul, and the only real emotion I seem to carry about with me is an unbounded admiration for the splendid public servants—the traffic policemen—who aid life and limb at the congested intersections of the city.

What would one's life be worth, say, at Forty-second street and Seventh avenue were it not for the two stalwart bluecoats who command the reckless taxi drivers bent upon mowing down inoffensive pedestrians and the general doltism and jetsam of traffic to stand still at the mere motion of a hand?

Really, these "bobbies" put to shame poor old Canute's ineffectual order to Neptune requesting the waves to stop rolling. Yes, herein lies my civic pride—New York's squadron police—and these guardsmen are the particular envy, too, of a man I knew, one well favored by the gods, but possessed of the usual innate perverseness, whose greatest earthly ambition is to be the "big guy bluecoat" stationed at Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, who holds up Mrs. Astor-bilt's motorcar and undauntedly bids Mr. Couponcutter lower his auto speed while driving to his banks to do more paper chopping. And the amusing part of it all is that this man, who has not outgrown his boyish enthusiasms,

TUMOR IN THE STOMACH

Completely Removed When She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

NEWBURY, ONT., April 4th. 1913.
"Some years ago, I was sick in bed, and thought I was going to die. I had a growth in my stomach, which the doctors said was a Tumor and they said that the only thing to do was to go to the hospital and have the tumor cut out. I dreaded an operation although both doctors said it was the only cure. I said I would die before being operated on. At this time, my mother in Alvinston sent me some "Fruit-a-tives" and induced me to try them as she had heard of another woman who had been cured of a similar growth in the stomach by taking "Fruit-a-tives".

To please my mother, I began to take "Fruit-a-tives" with the happy result that they cured me. I have not been to see a doctor since and my health is first class.

I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" every time I get a chance and I will be glad to have you publish this letter as some other woman may now be a sufferer from the same trouble and "Fruit-a-tives" will cure her" Mrs. A. McDONALD.

Mrs. Gertrude M. Bonham, an English girl, has succeeded in crossing Africa with only a cookboy and porters as her escort.

One of the newest arts to be taken up by women is that of bookbinding, and the latest entry into the art is Mrs. James Montgomery Flagg, wife of the artist, who has already twenty beautiful hand tooled volumes to her credit.

Miss Anna J. Cannon, who has well under way the task of cataloguing star plates at the Harvard astronomical observatory, has come to be known as the most distinguished woman astronomical worker in the world. She is a native of Delaware and in the course of her work has discovered 150 variable stars.

In the Art World.

To Victor D. Brenner, the sculptor and designer of the Lincoln cents, has been awarded the order for new work in granite and bronze for the entrance to Schenley park, Pittsburgh, in honor of Mrs. Schenley.

giving big drinks of factory milk that is not quite fresh. A drink lots of such milk and big "pot belly" on it, but fails and thrive and turn into the eloped cow one would like, A. S. Alexander in the Farm.

Be careful not to feed calves from separator skim milk. It is poisonous, or so irritant to the organs that the calf fills with gas, bloats and may die. Fits in calves come from indigestion, due to overfeeding milk in intervals at long intervals. Prevent hair balls in the stomachs, clip the hair from the flanks of the cow if the calf is allowed to suck its dam. Also clip to keep calves from sucking the cow's ears, etc. This sucking immediately after the calf has milk from a bucket. The cow's muzzle remains covered, and the calf licks this off. It wants more and sucks its hair. It is taken in this way, it may suck "wind" and become bloated.

To Treat Stock Kindly.

The English shell shaped serving dishes with the old fashioned linings of frosted glass are very quaint. The combination of silver and glass gives an opalescent appearance that is most attractive. The butter ball dishes of cut crystal in silver settings form a very pleasing feature of a daintily set table.

NEW KITCHEN DEVICES.

It Is Well to Be Wary in Trying Many Innovations.

One of the tests of efficiency in a factory is to have no unnecessary equipment, no article which has not been tested and proved useful. The efficient housewife realizes the force of this wisdom in her plant as well.

There are numberless patent devices on the market and new ones being invented every day. On a trip through the kitchen department of many large stores the unwary housewife is beset on every side by alluring demonstrators, who proudly proclaim the marvels of the labor saving articles they exhibit. But if she buys things that have not been tested she will soon have on her hands dishwashers which only succeed in breaking the dishes and potato parers which crumble up into bits of useless tin after short use, can openers which refuse to open anything, and her only recourse will be to throw these failures into the scrap heap.

The wise housewife will have learned her lesson by this experience and will begin again along different lines. She will buy her kitchen utensils and home equipment generally at a reliable store whose very name precludes the idea of cheap and uncertain articles being carried.

The housewife may go watch the process of any article she desires to purchase and be instructed in its use, and before purchasing any article, whether expensive or cheap and especially those which are essentially labor saving, it is certainly reassuring to know that it has been proved to be of value by experienced people.

Cleaning Polished Floors.

When cleaning polished or parquet floorings or linoleum which has been beeswaxed a good idea is to tie a large soft duster around a broom, going over the floor carefully with it, taking up the dust without causing any to fly about as one does when using a hair broom and sweeping in the usual way.

This done, remove the duster and in its place cover the broom with a bag made of flannelette or any material you may have, sewing several thicknesses over the part to come in contact with the floor. The legs of old stockings will do for the padding or, better still, an old piece of velvet or plush.

Then hold the broom slantwise, rubbing backward and forward all over the floor, thus polishing the surface without the trouble of stooping.

Occasionally the floor will need a coat of floor polish, but the method described is easy, and one is able to get over the work in a few minutes in a perfectly satisfactory manner.

tioned at Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, who holds up Mrs. Astor-bilt's motorcar and undauntedly bids Mr. Couponcutter lower his auto speed while driving to his banks to do more paper chopping. And the amusing part of it all is that this man, who has not outgrown his boyish enthusiasms, is so utterly unfit physically for the job, being possessed of much more pugnacity than brawn.

Speaking of unfitness, here am I in a state of entire financial collapse, having indulged too freely in post holiday bargains, being called upon for another wedding present. The daughter of a business friend of Dick's is foolish enough to add matrimony to her other attractions. And the gift in question is obliged to be something that will "do the family credit."

You, of course, know, my dear, how far away are the good old days when a book or homemade gift, backed by friendly thoughts, was considered all sufficing by the wealthiest bride.

Not content with the wedding present, there's the engagement gift to be provided for the girl friend who is contemplating the fatal step. The moment one hears of Mary or Dorothy's engagement one must hunt up some "lovely" gift as a contribution to the future menage. It may be a porcelain cup and saucer, a decorative rug, a picture or a vase or some hand embroidered piece of linen. But whatever is offered, it does not absolve the donor from the necessity of giving a wedding present in due course.

An unattached girl I know predicts that soon a society of soured spinsters will institute an annual reception and distribution of gifts to compensate them for the amount of hard cash they have expended on wedding presents for their friends.

In continental countries less ceremony is observed about wedding gifts. Among the peasantry in some parts of Germany laurel leaves and bouquets are brought as offerings to the bride, a fashion which might well be followed in higher circles.

Dick says he wishes he had been a native of the William Tell country when he had to purchase my engagement ring, for in Switzerland no special engagement ring is given by the young man to his fiancée. A gold wedding ring worn on the third finger of the right hand serves in that capacity as a betrothal ring, being transferred to the third finger of the left hand when the marriage takes place.

Speaking of fingers, mine are stiff with cold. It is a freezing day, and I have scribbled this scrawl huddled over the radiator. There is some unwritten law among apartment house janitors that the steam heat goes down with the thermometer. Why this is thusly please explain to yours perishingly.

Kansas has a double standard, and married men convicted of drunkenness are fined twice as much as single men charged with the same offense. This is hardly fair in view of the fact that single men have no excuse for getting intoxicated.—Rochester Post-Express.

The fact just disclosed that William H. PAUL KILLORIN, - Proprietor.

congratulated on his success in the matter and also on grant of Colonization Road monies, to be expended on a continuation of above road, obtained from the Government.

County Clerk W. G. Wilson is in receipt of a copy of Order-in-Council granting $4973.38 as Government's share of County Road expenditure in 1913. This is an increase of Government's share by 1/4 of special grants retained by Public Works Department, and disallowed by the department but which after County Council waited upon the Ministers has been allowed. The Department however still declines to bear its share of monies expended simply as maintenances or repair of County Roads.

Rural School Fairs.

The Department of Agriculture, Napanee, are extending the Rural School Fair Work. So successful was the school fair held at Dorland last October that other townships desired to have school fairs held. The townships of North Fredericksburgh, Sheffield, Adolphustown and Amherst Island have already voted grants for school fairs to be held in their respective townships. The department of agriculture pays all the expenses of a fair except the prize-money, which must be raised by grants and donations locally. Seed of O. A. C., No. 72 oats, O. A. C. No. 21 Barley, early Eureka and Davies Warrior potatoes, Long-fellow Flint corn and yellow Leviathan Mangels are given free to the children. In each school a few settings of white Wyandotte eggs are distributed to pupils who agree to establish a flock of white Wyandottes on their home farm. It is hoped in time to hold a school fair for children in each township in Lennox and Addington.

Spring time means Kodak time, make up your mind to own a kodak this summer if you want to thoroughly enjoy your outings. Sold in Napanee only at Wallace's Drug Store, Limited. "If it isn't Eastman's it isn't a kodak."

Grace Church.

A very interesting and profitable social evening was held in the above church on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Rev. Dr. Howard conducted the devotional exercises, after which Rev. J. P. Wilson was called to occupy the chair and introduce the numbers on the programme, which consisted of vocal and instrumental music and recitations. A large audience was present who thoroughly enjoyed the evening as was evidenced by the frequent encores. Rev. S. Sellery was listened to with the closest attention while he explained the difference between the enforcement of the Canada Temperance Act and Local Option. He then gave a word picture of the great Dominion Alliance Convention held in Toronto a few weeks ago and told the audience of the renewed energy with which the delegates had returned home to fight the liquor traffic. Refreshments were served at the close and a social time enjoyed.

An Unusual Event.

Cutting and filling ice houses on March 23rd is possibly a record date
in the history of the oldest inhabitant
of Napanee. On February 20th, S. C.
Denison finished cutting and storing his summer supply of ice, and on Monday, March 23rd, a second crop of ice was taken from the same place and stored in the ice house of Mr. C. W.
Conway. The ice was about ten inches thick and was pure water ice.
This is probably the latest date known when ice has been taken from the river and stored for summer use.
Last year the ice went out of the river
on March 21st.

Fifty Years Together.

Rev. and Mrs. H. I. Allen, who have been residents of Ottawa for the last fifteen years, residing at 80 Park avenue celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Wednesday. Mr.
and Mrs. Allen were at home to their many friends all day. Mr. Allen is a retired Methodist church minister,
having been superannuated several years ago owing to throat trouble.
Rev. Mr. Allen was born in August 1837, at Wilton, Lennox county. He received his early education at Odessa,
Newburgh High school, Albert College
Belleville. For a number of years
Mr. Allen taught school and then entered the ministry of the Methodist church in 1871. After 25 years of service he was superannuated and went to Ottawa from Napanee. The many Napanee friends of Mr. and Mrs. Allen wish them many sincere congratulations in their happy marriage of fifty years.

Historical Lecture To-night.

The Historical Society gave the people of the county a great treat
when Prof. Grant delivered his much talked of lecture on "Boundary Disputes" in 1911. That lecture was thoroughly enjoyed by a large audience. To-night Prof. Grant will travel a long distance from home and lecture on "Venice". His lantern views are sure to be of great interest.
Historical Hall should be taxed to its capacity. The lecture begins at 8 o'clock.

THE REASON FEWER PEOPLE TAKE "SALTS."

We find the use of salts and other harsh physics is becoming less every year because more and more people are using Rexall Orderlies, which we
and they firmly believe to be the best bowel remedy ever made. They taste
so much like candy that even the children like them. At the same time they act so easily and naturally that there is no purging, griping or pain.
They promptly remove the constipation and by soothing and strengthening the bowels, make it less liable to occur again. We have the utmost faith in them. We know what they are made of and the pleasant beneficial
results that always follow their use.

You needn't take our word for it.
If Rexall Orderlies don't help you—if they don't entirely relieve all your bowel troubles—come back and tell us and we'll give back your money. In vest tin boxes; 10c, 25c, 50c.

You can buy Rexall Orderlies only
at The Rexall Stores, and in this town
only of us, Wallace's Drug Store,

Stella Boy Was Shot.

William Leavens, aged fourteen, an old country boy employed by Arnold Wemp, of Stella, Amherst Island, was taken to Kingston General Hospital
on Wednesday night with several gun
wounds in his face, neck and chest.
It seems that Harold Smith, another farm hand at the same place, was cleaning a gun outside the house about five o'clock in the afternoon. The boy Leavens was sixty feet away, cleaning his boots. Smith did not know the gun was loaded and snapped the trigger. The weapon was pointed towards the boy, who received the shot in his face, neck and chest.
